President's report

The highlights of the 2018/2019 financial year include the acquittal of the NSW Heritage Grant, four successful SIG symposia, and a Senate enquiry submission.

NSW Heritage Grant

The AICCM was proud to partner with the Grimwade Centre and Bathurst Regional Council on the project, Sustainable Conservation: a pilot program for regional NSW and emerging conservators. This project embodies the goals of the AICCM, which actively works to promote the long-term care of Australia's heritage, for present and future generations. We recognise the knowledge, skills and stories that our heritage embodies, and its role in creating a vibrant, rich and resilient society. We are also dedicated to creating and supporting training and employment opportunities for conservation students and professionals. The pilot program has aligned with each of these goals and the success of the program is inspiring for the conservation profession. The AICCM National Council would like to thank the NSW Government Office of Environment and Heritage for their generous support of the program.

This project has been extremely beneficial to the conservation industry and it would be great to see AICCM be involved in more like this in the future. We learnt a lot during the process and we would like to put some guidelines around auspicing grants such as these.

Reconciliation Committee

In 2019 the AICCM put out a call for members to form a Reconciliation Committee. Nine members volunteered to join and Agata Rostek-Robak, Manager Conservation at Australian National Maritime Museum, has been appointed Chair. The AICCM Reconciliation Committee is investigating the process required to ensure greater acknowledgement and respect by the AICCM for First Nations people and their cultural heritage. The Committee is assessing critical pathways and meaningful steps that will suit the AICCM in the short, medium and long term.

Sponsorship and Grants

Kasi Albert was appointed Sponsorship and Grants officer to assist with co-ordinating the requests for sponsorship and grants across the AICCM. Kasi worked on a sponsorship for the 2017 National Conference and the work has been adapted to provide a template for all AICCM events, particularly SIG events and the National Conference.

2019 National Conference Bursary

The Bursary guidelines and form have been drafted. The total amount set aside by AICCM is $5000, as agreed to at CM191. The bursary will be divided amongst applicants depending on reason given and budget outline. The Bursary committee consisted of the National Treasurer, Membership Services Officer and a member from VIC Division Conference Committee.

Fundraising Session

National Council engaged Steven Richardson from Creative Partnerships Australia to give a free presentation on an Introduction to Arts Fundraising at the Face-to-Face meeting in June. Our major lesson learnt was to ask for donations. After that session we received over $400 from the participants!

Events

Thank you to Didee Knight, Event & SIG Co-ordinator, and the SIGs for their work on following events:

- AICCM 10th Book, Paper and Photographic Materials Symposium at Melbourne Museum
- Held in conjunction with the Symposium, Daniel Burge from the Image Permanence Institute presented a lecture, as well as two-and-a-half-day workshop (held twice)
- Gilded Objects Conservation Special Interest Group (GOCSIG) and Conservation Framing Special

Interest Group ‘Frames: Concept, History and Conservation Symposium 2’ at the Art Gallery of NSW

- Textiles SIG Symposium Fibre to Fabric: Fur, Feather and Finishes in Sydney
- The Preventive Special Interest Group (PSIG) and Sustainable Collections Committee (SCC) presented the Managing Risk Symposium

Foresight Event

The proposed Foresight event was approved unanimously at National Council Meeting 192. As the AICCM National Council prepares its 2020-2025 strategic plan, it is timely that we gather as a professional community to discuss what changes are impacting conservation as a profession and what the aims are for the AICCM as an organisation. This requires a broad understanding of the current environment in which we carry out our activities and the emerging issues and mature trends that will affect our near-term and longer-term practice. The workshop will draw on key stakeholders and partners from related professional bodies, research and education sectors in addition to members from AICCM National Council. It is hoped the workshop can support productive industry relationships that build to future collaborative projects. The event will be facilitated by José Ramos, Director, Action Foresight. The workshop will bookend the National Conference, so we expect a cross-over of ideas and discussions to take place that week.

Website

The AICCM website is going through a much-needed upgrade, as the software used to host the website is becoming redundant. This gives the organisation a chance to make changes to the structure, content and appearance of the site. Our goals are to move to a mobile-friendly website, to improve site navigation, and to improve member access to information such as membership invoices. We will be moving to Wordpress, which is widely used in the NGO sector, and retaining the same membership database, which will be compatible with the upgraded website.

Strategic & Business Plans

The AICCM National Council is working through the Business Plan that relates to the current strategic plan (<https://aiccm.org.au/news/aiccm-strategic-plan-2016-2020>). Since 2016 most of the goals on the Business Plan have been achieved and will be able to be concluded.

Jennifer O’Connell

AICCM National President

Vice President's report

One of the roles of the AICCM Vice President is to act as a conduit between the National Council and special committees or working groups.

The Sustainable Collections Committee achieved an enormous amount in 2018–19 and deserves lavish praise. MaryJo Lelyveld (Committee Chair) organised new contributions for the Sustainable Collections wiki, for the AICCM website. This resource aims to advance knowledge of sustainability issues within the profession, by collating key topic publications, industry case studies and areas requiring further development or research. With the Preventive Special Interest Group, MaryJo and the Committee also organised the highly successful Managing Risks to Collections conference in February 2019. Keynote speakers included Dr Jane Henderson from Cardiff University, Dr Penny Whetton from the University of Melbourne, lighting consultant Kit Cuttle, and Joel Taylor from the Getty Conservation Institute. Deakin University were conference partners and provided the conference venue, Deakin Downtown.

The Collection Environment Survey created by Amanda Pagliarino received over 100 responses and led to new AICCM environmental guidelines, ratified by National Council and now available at <https://aiccm.org.au/about/who-we-are/advocacy/environmental-guidelines-australian-cultural-heritage-collections>. Amanda also spent two months at the Getty Conservation Institute working on the AICCM Environmental Guidelines Project, working through the survey data to develop a decision-making tool for Australian collecting organisations.

The Education and Training Committee and the Disaster Preparedness Committee remained inactive during 2018–19, though new terms of reference for each were prepared and endorsed by the National Council.

Other Vice-Presidential activities in 2019–20 included developing a decision log template (to track decisions made in various AICCM forums), a draft guide for developing AICCM Study Groups, and a pilot Study Group guide about the use of gels for paper conservation. Study Groups are proposed as another means of professional development, both in developing a guide and participating in a group. A study group has been established to test the pilot guides and will work through the documents in 2019–20.

Event data from the past five years was analysed to identify attendance and budget trends, and the results presented at the AICCM National Council Face-to-Face meeting in June.

A proposal was developed to review the demographic data we collect on members when they join AICCM; some broad agreements were made at National Council Face-to-Face but further work will occur in 2019–20 as part of the planned website upgrade.

Many thanks to all AICCM office-bearers and to everyone who has worked to support the AICCM and its goals in 2018–19. It has been a pleasure to work with you during the year, and I am continually impressed by the passion, generosity and collegiality of our members.

I would also like to thank the many industry supporters of AICCM in this past year—those who advertise with us and those who have sponsored our events. Your support is invaluable to our activities. Special thanks to the Australian Decorative & Fine Arts Societies (ADFAS) and the Gordon Darling Foundation, who generously supported professional development programs for Australian conservators.

Events report

A number of Special Interest Group (SIG) events and workshops have taken place in the past year, all receiving very positive feedback. Melbourne Museum hosted AICCM's 10th Book, Paper and Photographic Materials conference in November 2018 with conservators from across Australia and overseas gathering to engage in discussions and workshops ranging from change and challenge followed by innovation. Jointly coordinated by the Book & Paper and Photon SIGs, Alice Cannon, Albertine Hamilton, Noni Zachri and the organising team provided three days of presentations curated into thematic sessions, including Communities and Collaboration, Revisitation, and the Anthropocene. In conjunction with the conference, Daniel Burge of the Image Permanence Institute presented two Digital Print Preservation workshops hosted at the National Gallery of Victoria and generously supported by the Gordon Darling Foundation.

Early in February 2019 the Textiles SIG held a very successful symposium hosted by the Sydney Jewish Museum in Darlinghurst. Fibre to Fabric, Fur, Feather and Finishes saw more than 60 members and non-members from across Australia, New Zealand, USA, South America and Asia participate and present over two full days of lectures and workshops. These were followed by a day of tours, including the Holocaust Centre, the Powerhouse Museum/Museum of Applied Arts and Sciences (MAAS), and the Museum's Castle Hill storage facilities. Keynote speaker Dinah Eastop, Institute of Archaeology UCL, challenged all participants to consider their notions of the profession while other presentations disseminated current research and treatment reports. An enormous thanks to Tess Evans for her organisation, facilitation and attention to detail that ensured an extremely useful symposium for all attendees.

The exceptionally successful Managing Risks to Collections February 2019 conference was presented jointly by the Preventive Conservation SIG and AICCM's Sustainable Collection Committee (SCC). Over 120 participants and presenters from across Australia, the Philippines, Singapore, Japan, New Zealand, the United Kingdom and the United States of America participated, including international keynote speakers Jane Henderson (Cardiff University) and Joel Taylor (Getty Conservation Institute). Attendees were able to enjoy the expertly organised conference thanks to Mary Jo Lelyveld (SCC), Tegan Anthers (Preventive Conservation SIG Coordinator) and their organising committee.

April 2019 found a wonderful mix of international and local presenters and participants attending the second joint Gilded Objects Conservation (GOCSIG) and Conservation Framing SIG (CFSIG) event entitled FRAME: Concept, History and Conservation hosted by the Art Gallery of New South Wales (AGNSW) in Sydney. Keynote speakers included George Bisacca, John Payne, Malgorzata Sawicki, Werner Murrer Rahman and Dr Auffret. Special thanks go to the organising committee of Barbara Dabrowa (GOCSIG Convenor), Holly McGowan-Jackson, Malgorzata Sawicki and Louise Bradley (CFSIG Convenor). In addition, AICCM wishes to thank the Art Gallery for their generous in-kind sponsorship and for providing the event venue.

An enormous thank you also goes to the 2018-19 SIG Convenors for their commitment and tireless work in providing quality professional development opportunities and offerings. Included are Kelly Leahy and Noni Zachri (Photon SIG), Kasi Albert (Objects SIG), Alice Cannon and Albertine Hamilton (Book and Paper SIG), Samantha Hamilton (Exhibitions SIG), Alana Treasure (Paintings SIG), Stuart Fuller, Somaya Langley and Gerald Preiss (Electron SIG), Tess Evans (Textiles SIG), Tegan Anthes (Preventive SIG), Louise Bradley (Conservation Framers SIG), Barbara Dabrowa (Gilded Objects SIG), Petronella Nel (Conservation Science SIG) and Fran Paterson (Emerging Conservators SIG).

As the majority of SIG Convenor positions were due for elections in 2018-19, all position tenures were aligned to enable elections to be held every two years, simultaneously across all groups.

Meetings

National Council

The National Council met six times over the 2018-19 financial year, satisfying the AICCM Constitution's minimum requirement of three meetings.

The annual, two-day Face-to-Face meeting was held this year in June at the Tasmanian Museum and Gallery, Hobart. Highpoints included Steven Richardson's (Creative Partnerships Australia) presentation Introduction to Arts Fundraising and Dr Marcelle Scott's (University of Melbourne) concluding report on the NSW Heritage Grant project Sustainable conservation: pilot program for regional NSW and emerging conservators.

Seven Executive Meetings between the President, Vice President, Treasurer, Secretary and Secretariat were held over the financial year.

State Divisions and Special Interest Groups

Meeting frequency varies among AICCM State Divisions and Special Interest Groups, and is often connected to social and networking occasions or to project work. In addition, each incorporated State Division holds their own Annual General Meeting.

Australian Capital Territory (ACT)

The ACT Division had two presidents over the 2018/2019 year. Ian Batterham was missing in South East Asia for eight months (on long-service leave) and Eileen Procter stepped up to act as President in his absence.

As of this writing our committee comprises Hakim Rahim (Secretary), Anna Kalloudis (Treasurer), Rebecca Negri (Student Rep), Eileen Procter, Nick Zihrul and Freya Merrell.

Highlights of the previous year include:

- A 'Symposium Download', where fellow conservators talked about their attendance at Special Interest Group Symposia. The program included Preventive SIG, Textile SIG and Paper SIG.
- Awarding of Student of the Year for University of Canberra to Emma Anderson. Emma spent time as student representative on Council in 2018.
- The renowned Christmas Party and trivia quiz. This year the event was held at the Polish Club, for reasons of pierogi and beer!
- CREED Drinks (Conservators Responsibly Enjoying Evening Drinks) held monthly at the Old Canberra Inn in Lyneham.

Western Australia

- WA Division met in March 2019 to vote upon and approve the recent revision of the WA Division's Associations Rules. These were lodged with the WA Department of Mines, Industry Regulation and Safety.
- Highlights on the year included:

- A presentation about the history of cameras by photography expert Bob Halligan at the State Library of Western Australia
- A presentation on managing collection environments by Maria Kubik, followed by the end of year Christmas Party at the Court Hotel.

The WA Division AGM was held on the 29th August over a social gathering at the Gypsy Tapas House in Fremantle. The membership has also enjoyed the opportunity to engage in monthly social drinks, held at the Court Hotel, and hosted by State Secretary Bindy Wilson.

AGM was held on 6th December 2018 at the Court Hotel in conjunction with the WA Division Christmas Party.

South Australia and /Northern Territory

Events held by the South Australian and and Northern Territory Division included:

- Chris Payne, Senior Paintings Conservator at Artlab delivered the Alex Copland Attingham Lecture on The English Country House.
- The division collaborated with the Museum and Art Gallery of the Northern Territory (MAGNT) to present Tropical Tips: Caring for your Artworks in the Tropics, an annual event with about 35 attendants.
- Philippe Gerson, head of Paramedicine including Medical Imaging at Hotel Dieu, gave a talk on Radiography at the Louvre.
- Justin Gare of Artlab Australia presented a 'Chinwag' on Kingston's Redgum bookcase.

Queensland

Queensland Division events included the following:

- Jennifer Loubser and Samantha Shellard presented talks in preparation for the Book, Photograph and Paper symposium in Melbourne.

Chaired by Elizabeth Thompson; discussion around the conference themes, speakers, scoping capacity and possible volunteers to help.
- 18/07/2019 Lunch catch up with AICCM Queensland members at the Fox Hotel, South Brisbane.

The AGM was held on 7 November 2018. Election results were as follows: Rachel Spano - President, Maité Le Mens - Secretary, and Michael Marendy remains as Treasurer. The general members elected formed a committee to oversee the Queensland Division's Professional Development Grant selection. Applications for the grant opened late May, closed in mid-June and were announced on July 3. Amanda Pagliarino was recommended as the successful recipient, to present a paper at the AICCM National Conference 2019 in Melbourne with a proposed title, 'Managing loans in the era of sustainability'. This paper will focus on the implementation of the Bizot Green Protocol for loans following the Council of Australian Art Museum Director's decision to adopt a new approach to lending practices.

The selection committee's decision was based on Amanda's recent work with environmental parameters and the contribution it will make to the conservation profession nationally. Amanda has been working on environmental parameters for AICCM voluntarily and has self-funded most of her conference registrations, travel and accommodation.

Advocacy

Statements and Submissions

One of the AICCM National Council's in terms of advocacy is to make statements and submissions on issues affecting Australian conservation and cultural heritage where possible. AICCM has made the following statements and submissions on issues affecting Australian conservation and cultural heritage.

In 2018 AICCM made a submission to the Joint Standing Committee on the National Capital and External Territories inquiry into Canberra's national institutions. Thank you to Ian Batterham from ACT for drafting the submission. Other members of the profession also put in their own submissions. Further information is available here: https://www.aph.gov.au/Parliamentary_Business/Committees/Joint/National_Capital_and_External_Territories/NationalInstitutions.

Partners and projects

ADFAS

The Australian Decorative and Fine Arts Society (ADFAS) is AICCM's major partner and again generously sponsored our Student of the Year awards and the mid-career fellowship (see Awards for details of the recipients). We are so grateful for their continued support through the Patricia Robertson Fund (PRF). The AICCM and ADFAS Agreement concluded in 2018. Julia Gamble, Chair of the Patricia Robertson Fund, expressed interest in continuing the agreement, and a new agreement has been signed. To date, ADFAS has donated $54,000 to AICCM for grants and scholarships.

Blue Shield

AICCM has been a member of Blue Shield Australia (BSA) for a number of years, with an AICCM representative regularly attending BSA meetings. The BSA representatives for 2018–19 were Detlev Lueth and Alex Ellem, who provided valuable connections and proposals for ways to develop our partnership.

Awards

In 2018 eight awards were presented at the opening night for the 10th AICCM Book, Paper and Photographic Materials Symposium, held at the Centre for Contemporary Photography in Fitzroy, Melbourne on Tuesday 20th November. The two student awards were received by Sadra Zekrgoo (University of Melbourne, Grimwade Conservation Centre for Materials Conservation) and Emma Anderson (University of Canberra). Both of these were generously supported by ADFAS, who also supported the mid-career scholarship. This was awarded to Kelly Leahey to attend the joint AIC Photographic Materials Group and ICOM-CC Photographic Materials Working Group conference and workshop in New York.

AICCM Medal

Dr Malgorzata Sawicki

Over her 32 year career, Malgorzata (Margaret), Head of Frames Conservation, Art Gallery of NSW, has consistently advocated for the acceptance of Frames Conservation as a specialist discipline. She both founded and coordinated the Gilded Objects Conservation Special Interest Group of the AICCM. She has served as both a general member and a security on the NSW division of AICCM; and as Assistant coordinator and coordinator of the ICOM-CC Wood, Furniture, & Lacquer Working Group. Margaret has mentored and trained many students in frame conservation, published widely, and has shared her expertise with the conservation community both in Australia and overseas through contributing to conferences and workshops.

Conservator of the Year

Kelly Leahey

Kelly is a paper conservator at the State Library of Queensland (SLQ) and has been involved in two major projects this year, The first being the production of the Care for Collections video series. This series was aimed at equipping Queenslanders with knowledge to help them preserve their ANZAC stories. Since the video series release in early 2018, SLQ have received wide spread positive response from colleagues, clients and cultural organisations. The videos are a fantastic resource and through promotion on social media will no doubt be shared and re-shared well into the future. The second project was the development of cyanotype (blueprint) workshops to engage the public in alternative and historic photographic materials and techniques. Over 400 people have now attended these workshops, provided free to the public, and future workshops are scheduled.

ADFAS Student of the Year

Emma Anderson, University of Canberra Student of the Year

Emma is in her third year at University of Canberra and has achieved exceptional academic results. She also joined AICCM ACT Council early in her degree, and has taken on the role of Student Representative and has participated in activities with the Council such as organising the yearly Christmas Party. Emma has also undertaken a number of volunteer and internship placements.

Sadra Zekrgoo, GCCMC Student of the Year

Sadra Zekrgoo has made an outstanding contribution to the broader community while completing his 2018 PhD thesis on Persian inks. His research has been published and circulated internationally in the Restaurator, an important journal in the field of paper and manuscript conservation. His academic merits have also been presented at conferences and public lectures at the University of Melbourne, University of Adelaide, Cambridge University, and the University of Oxford, where he was invited to present and conduct a Persian ink making workshop.

Outstanding Service to the Conservation Profession

MaryJo Lelyveld

MaryJo is the Coordinating Conservator, National Gallery of Victoria. MaryJo has contributed greatly to the conservation profession over the last several years, both individually and in her previous role as the National President of the AICCM. She has worked tirelessly to raise the profile of conservation, to make connections between conservators and with colleagues in allied professions, to engage with current and emerging issues for the conservation profession, and to look forward and plan for the future to make the AICCM a more sustainable and relevant organisation.

- In 2018 MaryJo organized and led a cross-disciplinary symposium at NGV International, Collecting the Now, examining issues and current approaches to new media art works.
- It was under MaryJo's term as President that the AICCM collaborated with ICOM-CC to deliver the 17th Triennial Conference in Melbourne, the first time it had been held in Australia in nearly 30 years.
- Since stepping down as National President, MaryJo has continued her AICCM involvement via the Sustainable Collections Committee (SCC).

The Colin Pearson Outstanding Research in the Field of Material Conservation Award

Holly McGowan-Jackson

As Senior Conservator of Frames and Furniture, Holly has been a leading contributor in art historical frames research in Australia. In collaboration with conservation and curatorial colleagues at the National Gallery of Victoria, Holly has led the development of the Centre for Frames Research (CFR) which is committed to research into original frames and publishing frames information on-line via the NGV Frame and Frame Makers database and through gallery didactics. In addition, she has published in both popular and peer-reviewed journals including The Bulletin. Her commitment to conservation research is further supported by her involvement with the Gilded Object Conservation SIG as both the Chair and co-organiser of several events.

Outstanding Conservation Treatment of the Year

Museums Victoria's Aboriginal Advancement League hearse reactivation team

In mid 2017 Museums Victoria (MV) received a request to use the Victorian Aboriginal hearse in MV's collection to repatriate ancient Ancestral Remains. Having been in storage for the last 28 years, the car required considerable mechanical work to get it roadworthy again. In consultation with community stakeholders, removed parts were retained and the work was thoroughly documented for the future, though original components were retained and repaired where possible. In November 2017 the hearse was transported to Canberra, and on 20 November 2017 the hearse arrived at Lake Mungo driven by community member Daryl Pappin. In front of the community, the remains of Mungo Man and 104 Ancestors were returned to their Ancestral Homeland. This is not a 'traditional' conservation treatment but is a wonderful example of consultation, community engagement and giving a cultural object new meaning through conservation. The conservation and restoration work undertaken allowed the hearse to be back in the hands of its community and reincorporated into living culture at an incredibly significant time.

ADFAS Mid-Career Scholar

Kelly Leahey

The Patricia Robertson Fund award was granted to Kelly Leahey, Paper Conservator at the State Library of Queensland, to attend the joint American Institute for Conservation of Historic and Artistic Works, Photographic Materials Group (AIC PMG) and the International Council of Museums Committee for Conservation, Photographic Materials Working Group (ICOM-CC PMWG) conference and workshop, New York, in February 2019. This conference was highly relevant and timely, as the Queensland State Library began initial planning for the conservation of a significant collection of Richard Daintree's hand-painted photographs from the 1870s. In 2019, Kelly will be leading the technical examination component of this project, and will be looking to build capabilities at the State Library in this area. She will take this opportunity to consult with photograph conservation colleagues and to research international standards and current treatment options. This will help to make wise investment decisions in the instrumentation purchases. In particular, the library is looking at options for documentation using Ultraviolet Fluorescence photography (UVF), Infrared Reflectography (IRR), and Reflectance Transformation Imaging (RTI). Attending the conference will have a huge impact on conservation work and research into Queensland collections in the years to come.

Reach and engagement

Website

The website saw strong growth in page views this year, with an increase of almost 60,000 views on the 2017/18 figure, while the number of individual users increased by almost 10,000. Work continues on the upgrade to a new WordPress website. Increasing usability, improving member benefits and updating the design and visual of the website will help us make the most of what we already have and improve our offerings in future.

Our most popular individual pages continue to be those that offer practical resources such as the UV fluorescence post from Museums Victoria, which shows no sign of ever decreasing in popularity, the Visual Glossary, and the Collections Care page, which hosts reCollections. Website activity

Social media

Our social media numbers continue to grow steadily, particularly on Facebook where posts are reaching over 3000 people on average. Some of the most popular posts this year were about the fire at Notre Dame, which garnered worldwide attention and continues to provide an opportunity to discuss disaster planning and recovery in a heritage context.

We have sought to post more content about Aboriginal Australia and First Peoples cultural heritage and art to diversify our social media presence and highlight the importance of Indigenous culture to AICCM's functions and purpose. This content has been consistently popular and widely read, generating lots of positive comments and interactions on our Facebook page in particular.

There has been an increase in the number of people messaging us directly via Facebook, as this becomes a more usual way for members of the public to get in touch with organisations. Preliminary discussions about developing an AICCM social media policy are in progress.

1. Organic post reach is the number of people who saw a post that wasn't 'boosted', i.e. no money was spent to promote the post.

2. Boosted posts involve paying a small sum in Facebook advertising costs to have posts 'boosted' into the feeds of people in targeted demographics.

The eNews continues to be sent out digitally four times per year via MailChimp. After the Editor position became vacant, editorship was assumed by the Publications Officer and the Website Editor. We have since welcomed Adele Barbara, Michelle Hunter and Hannah Hoffman to a revitalised editorial committee. The March issue was the 'most opened' issue in 2019-20. We are currently updating some of the eNews procedures, particularly the submission guidelines and image permissions.

Membership numbers have grown in 2018-19, with total current memberships reaching 608 (an increase of 11% when compared to 2017-18*, see Table 3). Professional Membership

In June and July of 2018, David Stein and Natalie Hewlett (Professional Membership Officer) stepped down after many years of tireless work for the committee. Cristina Alballos stayed on to help with the transition of the new committee and will likely be stepping down in 2020. New committee members in 2018-19 were Noni Zachari, Matteo Volonte and Sandi Mitchell, with Sandi taking on the role of Professional Membership Officer.

At National Council Meeting 189 the Committee presented four new Professional Members and three Professional Member renewals for approval. At the National Council Meeting 192 we welcomed another four Professional Members and six renewals. There are currently 122 Professional Members.

The Professional Membership Committee proposed several changes to the application criteria and requirements for Professional Membership in 2018-19. Firstly, the committee proposed abolishing the minimum 20 points per year to allow for greater flexibility for members to manage the allocation of their minimum 150 points over the five-year period. This motion was not passed due to National Council concerns over the weakening of Professional Development requirements. Secondly, the Committee proposed that applicants be required to have a minimum of five years relevant professional service/employment on top of a minimum of two years training/education in the materials conservation field. The National Council passed this motion. The Committee also proposed that one of the three AICCM referees must be an AICCM Professional Member. This motion was also passed also by the National Council. Lastly, the Committee proposed that all files sent as part of Professional Membership applications be standardized. The National Council passed this motion.

The Committee also pursued the development of a logo for the exclusive use of Professional Members - for example, in their email signatures and websites.

Auditor's report

As per the requirements for incorporated bodies, the AICCM accounts were independently audited by Graeme F Delaney Pty Ltd. The 2018-2019 Profit and Loss Statement and Balance Sheet appear on the following pages. Membership numbers are also included.

Financial Position

AICCM finished the year with a profit of $27,477 due mostly to our successful event program. Our operational costs increased in expected areas such as insurance premiums, audit fees and the need to replace our out-of-date MYOB software. We also renewed our consultant agreements/contracts with a slight increase in consultant fees.
